Tutankhamun's Tomb

Tutankhamun was more commonly known as King Tut.

He was born Tutankhaten in 1341 BC. He was the son of Pharaoh Akhenaten. Tut was made Pharaoh at the age of 9, after his father's death. Tut changed back some of the laws his father had passed and changed his name to Tutankhamun.

Tut died at the age of 19 and was mummified and buried in a

Sarcophagus - there were 3 nested coffins and in the smallest was a golden burial mask, decorated with coloured glass and gemstones. Surrounding Tut were his treasured possessions and artefacts that he would need for his journey to the afterlife.

The tomb had been broken into but not much had been taken. The tomb was again

Grave Robbers

Why did the Egyptians change from using Pyramids to the using the Valley of the Kings to bury their dead Pharaohs? Grave robbers were attracted to steal from the magnificent pyramids, so the Pharaohs were then buried in the underground tombs of the Valley of the Kings.

How many tombs are there?

There are over 60 tombs in the Valley of the Kings. They vary from small tombs that are little more than a large hole in the ground to very large tombs with over 100 underground chambers.

Unfortunately, most of the tombs were looted thousands of years ago and the treasure was stolen or removed by thieves. There is artwork on the walls, however, that allows archaeologists to learn much about the lives of the Pharaohs and other leaders who were buried here.
