Woosh
Skim

The girl might ...

Reach
Peer
Perch
Wonder
Ponder

One day there is a little girl walking across the beach, she finds a bottle of bubble solution. The colours change around her when she starts to blow bubbles – colours go from dark blue/purple to a brighter orangey yellow. Then a bigger bubble comes and picks up the girl and she floats away. She goes up and up, higher and higher. The girl looks like she feels a bit unsure about the magic bubbles, but then she begins to smile and looks out in wonder to see lots of beautiful bubbles floating around her.

She blows more and more bubbles and then uses them as bouncy steppingstones. She bounces from one big bubble to the next, she goes down and down until she reaches the sea. She goes into the sea inside the bubble with a splash and sees lots of little colourful fishes swimming around her. She then floats back up inside the bubble into a starlit sky. She catches stars in her magic bubbles and whooshes around in circles on the bubbles.

Then she sees a sad girl, walking along the beach. One of the bubbles magnifies the sad girl in her red coat. The girl then blows more bubbles and she bounces and tumbles down to the sand. She leaves the bubble solution bottle in the sand, so that the sad girl will find it. She then goes and hides behind the rocks so that she can see what happens next. Peeping over the rocks she sees the colours change as the sad girl bounces away on her own magic bubbles. She has been a kind girl by leaving the bubbles for the sad girl to find. She is spreading the spreading the happiness of the magic bubbles.
